RAILROAD LABOR BOARD HOLD FIRST MEETING TODAY

Demands of Trainmen for Wage Increase Will Be Taken Up at Once

Men Case Will be Presented to Board This Afternoon--Also Managers Side

(By United Press)

Washington, April 16—The railroad labor board meeting for the first time today prepared to take up at once the demands of the railroad trainmen for higher wages. Seven members of the board were present at the initial meeting. A. Wharton of the labor group, and J. R. Barton of the public group, were expected to arrive this afternoon.

Demands of the trainmen, on which union leaders and railroad managers disagreed several weeks ago, will be taken up first in hopes that action will stop the "outlaw" strike. R. M. Doak, vice-president of the railroad trainmen, who was to present the men's case to the board this afternoon, said he believed prompt action of the board in taking the wage demands under consideration, would send a number of the strikers back to work. S. T. Whittier, representing the railroad executives, was also at the railroad administration today preparing to send to the board the railroad managers side of the case.

Board Organizes

Washington, April 16—The railroad labor board organized temporarily today and went into conference on the wage demands of the railroad workers which have been pending for several months.

H. Hunt, of Cincinnati, one of the public representatives, was named temporary chairman, and G. W. Hanger, another of the public representatives, temporary secretary.

Following the meeting, Hanger said the board had received the railroad wage cases from the bipartisan board of the workers and executives which adjourned without reaching an agreement several weeks ago.

Wm. Doak, spokesman for the trainmen, and E. T. Whittier, spokesman for railroad managers, were called in to the meeting. The board will meet again tomorrow.

Or the Allies Will Break Off Diplomatic Relations and Institute Blockade

(Written for the United Press)

Paris, April 16—France, Great Britain, Italy and Belgium have agreed unanimously to notify Germany they will break off diplomatic relations unless immediate and complete disarmament is carried out as provided in the treaty of Versailles. It was learned today.

The information was obtained from official sources here.

The allies will threaten a renewal of the blockade in event any insurrectionary government in Germany refused to carry out the treaty.

Dispatches to the French foreign office from Germany said heavy detachments of troops were concentrating at Pomerania. A coup d'etat similar to the Von Kapp movement was expected.

Reports of the impending coup were confirmed today by advices to British officials from their government representatives in Germany.

The allies' decision will be imparted to representatives in Berlin for communication to the German government. Many of the leaders were said to be men prominent in the Von Kapp movement who escaped arrest when that insurrection group was driven from control by the general strike.

Pickford Divorce Suit

(United Press)

Minden, Nevada, April 16—Mary Pickford-Fairbanks and her former husband, Owen Moore, were named as defendants in a suit filed here today by the state of Nevada to set aside a divorce decree recently granted the famous movie star.

The suit to dissolve the divorce followed the marriage of Mary Pickford to Douglas Fairbanks.

It charges all three with conspiracy, allegation of fraud, perjury and collusion. The complaint charges as entered are F. Fowler, attorney general, plaintiff, vs. Gladys M. Moore, known as Gladys M. Fairbanks, and Owen Moore.

The complaint which covers nearly sixty typewritten pages, charges Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, prior to her divorce, of agreeing to intermarry when Mary Pickford obtained her divorce from Owen Moore.

Owen Moore is charged with entering into a conspiracy with Fairbanks and Mary Pickford by means of which he wilfully appeared in Minden at the proper time to be served with the divorce complaint.

The complaint in part said: "That some time prior to Feb. 15, one Douglas Fairbanks, resident of California, and Gladys Moore entered into an agreement whereby they promised intermarry at such time when the court issued a divorce decree to the defendants."

This is followed by an allegation of the conspiracy entered into by Fairbanks and Mrs. Moore by means of which a divorce was granted and the marriage of Fairbanks and Mrs. Moore was solemnized.

The complaint is that Mrs. Moore came to Minden Feb. 15, and after seventeen days' residence, obtained her divorce, then returned to her home residence in Los Angeles.

hard for this. It will mean so much for Brainerd and the northern part

This would also mean a street

Chinese Music Peculiar

Chinese music has always been beyond the grasp of the occidental mind, appearing to have neither rhyme nor reason to it. As a matter of fact, a Chinese musician must be very skilled, indeed, in his profession to hold a position in an oriental orchestra. Chinese music is not written. The words of some of the favorite songs have been preserved, but the music has been handed down from father to son for generations that go far back before the day of the troubadours. When music is played it is played according to the memory of the musician and his idea of interpretation. A musician varies the performance as his best judgment dictates, and the strings, reeds or brass may break in at almost any time.

England's Gleaning Bell

Gleaning went out of fashion with the disappearance of the old windmills and watermills, because cottagers can no longer get their gleaned corn ground. But the "harvest bell," which notifies the villagers when they may begin gleaning and when they must cease, is still rung in some rural parishes within reach of London. At one place the "gleaning bell" rings from the tower of the parish church at 9 a. m. and 5 p. m. as soon as the harvest is sufficiently advanced. One penny is paid to the bell ringer by each family that gleans, so he can hardly be called a profiteer.

Birds That Dig

We are not accustomed to think of birds as burrowing animals, but the puffin answers to that description. It is a chunky little fowl, less than a foot high, with a large and powerful beak. For a home, it scratches a hole in the ground sometimes as much as four feet deep. To capture a puffin one must go digging. It is rather a job, and, inasmuch as the bird bites and claws fiercely, one is likely to suffer in the process. Thus the creature has maintained its numbers on many a lonely rookery, where other species of wild fowl have been killed off and exterminated.—Philadelphia Ledger.

British Broad Arrow

The broad arrow is the mark cut or stamped on all British government stores to distinguish them as public or crown property, and to denote or denote which is a felony. Persons in possession of goods marked with the broad arrow forfeit the goods and are subject to a penalty. The broad arrow was the cognizance of Henry, viscount of Sydney, earl of Romney, master general of ordnance, 1693-1702, and was at first placed only on military stores. It is also the mark used in the British ordnance survey to denote points from which measurements have been made.

Tactless, Indeed.

Miss Giddy—How old do you think I am?
Tactless Man—Oh, I should say thirty-five.
Miss G.—Hm! You are ten years out of the way.
T. M.—Why, my dear lady! You can't really be forty-five!—Boston Transcript.

Checkers Ancient Game

It is only in this country that the game is known as checkers. In England it is called "draughts," and in Germany "Damenpiel," while in the French it is known as "Les Dames," or more elaborately as "Le Jeu de dames a la polonoise." One authority declares brahmsly that it is a modern game, although a somewhat similar game was known to the Egyptians as early as 1600 B. C. However, Plato had his theory as to the origin of the game, while Homer represents Penelope's suitors as playing checkers to kill time. So we see that the customs in a thousand rural grocery stores and barber shops are but a survival of classic diversions.

GOOD

By RALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright 1929, Western Newspaper Union)

She would not forget him to her dying day! She said it fervently to herself and believed it. For only a fleeting moment had his eyes flashed down into her own, had his arm encircled her, but, though the peril of death menaced, Arline Drury treasured its memory rapidly.

Her home was an old cabin at the lower edge of a high cliff. She had wandered along its apex gathering wild flowers, when her foot slipped. Over the edge of the yawning precipice she went, her body dangling in space, her descent only checked by hands clutching at exposed tree roots. As she sought to find a foothold against a projecting rock, it loosened. She heard it land far below with a crash. Her heart sickened. Then at the chug-chug! of an automobile she uttered a frantic, despairing cry:

"Help!"

Fifty feet away the driver of an automobile holding three young men like himself checked the machine with a shock, traced the cry, caught sight of the white, clinging hands, flung himself flat, reached over and dragged the imperiled girl to safety.

He supported her, half fainting, in his arms, his senses thrilled as that lovely face was lifted to his own. He released her gently. Her beautiful eyes were swimming with tears of gratitude.

"Oh! how can I ever thank you!" she began, but he smiled reassuringly. "Can I help you further?" he asked. "My home is near at hand," she murmured. He lifted his cap courteously, regained the automobile. Chug-chug! He was gone out of her life as swiftly as he entered it.

"Your aunt is ill again, Arline," said the father, "and the folks sent a messenger over early this morning to have you come and spend a few days."

It was the third day after that when the same young man who had come to her rescue reappeared in the vicinity. Walter Noble made inquiries concerning the girl he had so tragically met, and learned her name and the location of her home. He appeared as an amateur photographer making some pictures of the surrounding mining district, and seeking board and lodging for a week or two.

"My only helper is my daughter," explained Mr. Drury, "but if you are willing to bunk in rough and ready and take pot luck, why, you might make do."

This arrangement suited Noble to perfection. The second night of the stay of his guest Mr. Drury took him into his observatory and pointed to a large boulder lying on his table.

"I want to tell you something about a great discovery I have probably made," he spoke. "The other night, while strolling near here, I observed an unusually brilliant meteor flash across the sky. It seemed to fall somewhere near the house here. The next morning I chanced to go up into the attic and there was a hole in the roof, and lying upon the floor was this boulder. I have made a study of meteoric phenomena. Inspecting this mass in my crude way, I find that it bears fossil residuum, proving that in whatever planet it came from the same organic life as our own has existed. I have little money, but if you would take a specimen of the rock to a city analyst and get me a report on its constituents, I would try and scrape up enough to pay for his labor."

Noble was glad to get into favor with the father of Arline. He started forthwith for the city with the precious specimen. It was five days later that he returned to Brownville. As he neared the cliff his pulses quickened magically. Seated at the self same spot where he had last seen her was the fair being, whose loveliness had attracted him hither.

She arose with a conscious blush as he approached her. She swayed unsteadily under the influence of his magnetic glance.

"You—you are the gentleman who has undertaken a kindly mission for father?" she faltered confusedly.

"I fear I am bringing back disappointing news," replied Noble. "I infer you are aware of your father's hope that the boulder is meteoric. The analyst told me it was not. But he has sent an analysis," and Noble indicated a sealed envelope in his pocket. "Why! the light suddenly dawns upon me!" exclaimed Noble in an animated tone. "The meteor stone must be a fragment of the rock you loosened that—that day I first met you," and the speaker's face was rapt and glowing. "It fell upon the roof below."

"The day you saved my life, which I shall never forget," said Arline in a low, earnest tone, and then, side by side, each realizing that mutually they shared the same emotion, they went to the home below the cliff.

A shade of disappointment crossed the face of Mr. Drury as he read that his wonderful meteor was only common earth clay. Then his eyes brightened.

"An analysis of the specimen," he observed. "Rich in gold and coincidentally an outcropping of a great vein of metal. Why! if that is so, and I could acquire the means of expanding my scientific studies, what might I not accomplish?"

It was so and riches came, but to Walter Noble the love of the gentle creature he had saved was the treasure he most fervently cherished.

APPLY NAMED "MOLTEN SEA"

High Priests' Swimming Pool in Solomon's Temple Most Wonderful "Tub" Ever Constructed.

How many persons ponder, while "tubbing" in the midst of modern conveniences, on how the rest of the world performs this same act of personal cleanliness? The stolen pleasures of the "old swimmin' hole," the wooden tub in the kitchen surrounded by that questionable curtain of privacy—a sheet over the clothes horse—a real sea bath or swim in a "gym" pool have been the stepping stones of progression for most of us to the modern conveniences.

This bathing idea started with Bible folk, who built the most wonderful swimming pool the world has ever seen in Solomon's temple. This "molten sea" measured ten cubits from brim to brim, five cubits in height and was round in compass; the thickness was a hand's breadth, and the brim, shaped like that of a teneup, was carved with lilies and leaves. The immense basin was borne aloft by 12 carved oxen, three each facing north, south, east and west. The pool received and held 3,000 bathings at one time and was designed for and used by high priests, there being 20,000 baths of wine and the same number of oil provided for the hymen.—Indianapolis Star.

HOW GOOD ROADS WILL PAY

Hennepin county will have by January 1st 40,000 automobiles and trucks.

On a basis of $18 from each owner to be paid into the good roads fund, they will pay each year $720,000 and in ten years the amount, considering the natural increase in automobiles, will be nearly ten million dollars. For this Hennepin will get 72.5 miles of hard surfaced roads, costing $2,175,000.

Hennepin county auto and truck owners will contribute something like eight million dollars towards building hard surfaced roads in other counties of the state. Ramsey and St. Louis counties will pay to the state at large probably a larger amount. Every city in the state will contribute several million dollars in addition, and all this is to be expended on the country roads.

The farming communities receiving the most direct benefit will not pay probably more than one-fourth the cost of the 7,000 miles of paved highways, every rod of which will be outside the cities, which will pay about seventy-five per cent of the expense.

It should also be remembered that by the adoption of Amendment No. 1 Minnesota will receive several millions from the federal government, which it will not get if the amendment is defeated. While the cost is heaviest on the cities, that get none of the paved highways, it will result in a big saving to the men who put up the cash.

Take Hennepin county, for illustration. With its 40,000 automobiles and trucks, it means a saving on the most conservative estimate of two cents a mile. If the average distance traveled by each automobile is only one thousand miles a year, the saving to the Hennepin county owners will be $800,000 annually, and this saving will be larger year by year, as the number of motor vehicles increase, which is considerable in excess of the amount they will pay to assist in giving Minnesota a splendid system of highways. As a matter of fact, the average mileage of each automobile will be nearer three thousand than one thousand miles, and the direct saving to Hennepin county owners will be over two million dollars a year, on an investment of $720,000.

Is there a voter in Minnesota foolish enough to vote against Amendment No. 1?

MORE TRAINS!

Several main line Northern Pacific trains were routed through Pillager Sunday evening, following a wreck on the line between Staples and Little Falls at Cushing. As a result, an idea has occurred to Brainerd citizens to try and have the Northern Pacific route an east and west bound train by Brainerd daily, which would give evening service to them, going to the cities and returning, and through west and return. This could be done without much trouble or cost to the company. It is a good idea which should meet with favor with the company officials.—Pillager Herald.

NORTHWEST NEWS

Republican Elimination Convention
 St. Paul, April 16.—Republican county organizations of the state were preparing the ground work today on the state convention to be held here May 8.

Precinct chairmen will have data within a few days to enable them to stage precinct caucuses May 1. County conventions will be held May 5.

Polling places in the precinct caucuses will be open from 2 p. m. to 5 p. m., this time instead of 7:30 to 8:30 p. m. as in the presidential preference primary. A storm of protest against the short hours for balloting, led by U. S. Sen. Hiram Johnson, who was a presidential candidate, caused Gustav Lindquist, chairman of the state central committee, to arrange longer hours.

County conventions May 5 will name 1,101 delegates to the state convention.

All candidates for governor in the Republican ranks are expected to participate in the elimination convention. Some have declared they would not enter the convention, but it is believed all but Henrik Shipstead, candidate of the Nonpartisan League, will go in before the curtain raises.

Women will participate in the convention and it is believed a large number of women delegates will be named. Comparatively few women figured in the state convention for expression of presidential preference March 16.

College Baseball Opening

Trained men were sent from one meeting to another to explain to the laymen the object of the movement and the part they will be expected to take in insuring its success.

Beautiful St. Sophia.

St. Sophia's church at Constantinople is one of the most remarkable buildings in the world. In architectural features the structure has a 107-foot dome carried on four pillars, one at each corner, and composed of light pumice stone, with the apex 175 feet above the floor.

So extraordinary is the appearance of the church that the awe-stricken Sultan Mohammed is reported as having stopped at the door when the building was taken over by the Moslems and, seeing a soldier hewing at the floor "For the faith," exclaimed, "Ye have the whole city to pillage and enslave; leave ye me the buildings!"

The Mohammedans have never destroyed the treasures of art they found upon taking Constantinople, but have covered them up. They have preserved whole cisterns or cellars full of priceless manuscripts of Greek and Byzantine literature, and writings belonging to the early part of the Gospel age.

To Drill Holes in Glass.

By using a combination of turpentine and camphor, glass may be drilled with a common drill, says Everyday Engineering. When the point of the drill comes through the hole should be worked with the end of a three-cornered file, having edges ground sharp. Use the corners of the file to scrape rather than to crack the glass or flake off pieces of it while finishing. The mixture should be used freely, both while drilling and scraping. It may be used as well to drill hard cast iron and tempered steel.

Effective Remedy.

 "Is there any cure for that sort of thing?"
 "Certainly. Give Glipping a tip that will enable him to pick up a few thousands in the stock market and the alleged woes of the proletariat will no longer mean anything to him."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Reflected Glory.

 "I wouldn't object," replied the new type of citizen. "I might wear a silk hat and be permitted to introduce her to the assembled multitude."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

ITS "CULTURE" A TRADITION

"Highbrow" City of Bogota, in Colombia, Does Not Really Live Up to Its Reputation.

Bogota, the capital of the Republic of Colombia, is a sort of South American Boston. Ever since the days when it was a colony of Spain it has been accounted a "highbrow" town and its name has been associated with literature, art, science and education. It is filled with sculpture, which ranges in subject from local heroes to great figures in Spanish history. There are many schools and colleges, a museum and an astronomical observatory.

Despite all this, the intellectual atmosphere of Bogota is more of a tradition than a reality. No great works of art have been produced there. The city is full of poets, but that is true of every city in Latin America, where young men and women compose and recite poetry as a social diversion, just as they play the piano and sing songs in this country. The scientists of Bogota have made some real progress, especially in archeology and natural history.

Many of the people of Bogota are Spaniards of the purest descent. When the country was colonized by the Spaniards centuries ago the colonists retired to the high Andean region and have lived there ever since in an isolation which has kept them true to type. These Spaniards form the ruling class, the rest of the people being "mestizos" of mixed Spanish and Indian blood.

Bogota is situated at an elevation of almost 9,000 feet and enjoys a splendid climate.

FIRST USED BY FRENCH KING

Expression Now So Common, "Let George Do It," Said to Have Originated With Louis XII.

Many people go no further back than to the well-known play to account for the interesting little ejaculation, "Let George Do It." Its sentiment appeals to all of us strongly, when we wish to shift a disagreeable task from our own shoulders to those of some other available person, whom we make ourselves believe is more efficient—perhaps we are lazy. Incidentally, we may succeed also in making him believe that he is the only person for the job.

It may chance that we have the legal and ethical right to request George to do it and that it is tolerably certain that George will patiently receive and discharge the responsibility; or it may be that we merely wash our hands of the matter and with a shrug of the shoulders proceed on our way, remarking, "I can't. Let George do it."

However that may be, remarks the Kansas City Star, the origin of the sentence is this: Louis XII of France, himself a strong ruler, was fortunate to have a prime minister who was a clever executive and possessed of good sense, George d'Amboise. To him Louis referred many of the most delicate and onerous affairs of the kingdom. Things turned out so satisfactorily under George's manipulation that Louis' slogan came to be "Que Georges le fasse" (Let George do it.)

Memory in Writing.

Most of the too few painters I know talk easily enough, but when one of them is talking to another I notice how often he hesitates, not for a word, but for a memory. His eye is waiting until it sees with the needed degree of distinctness the color or form of the thing he is talking about.

So a writer will often stop, hesitate, hang back, until memory has brought his subject into the field of vision, where he will hold this subject until his remembering eye has seen what he was looking for concretely, and the words he was after come of themselves. They will not be the words that would have come if he had not made this effort to remember.

To the good memory, the memory that can command things seen, heard, felt or understood, comes the phrase that nobody ever thought of before, in its fresh exactness.—Philip Littell.

Furze.

Can you conceive any covering fitter for the hills of the sun itself than this magnificent furze, as it appears in England, robing the heaths and commons all over the country? It is a golden undulation, a foreground, and from some points of view a middle distance, fit to make the richest painter despair, a veritable field of cloth of gold. Morning, when the dawn is of a fineness to match, must look beauty for beauty on it. Sunset is glory. The gold goes marching away in the distance toward the dark trees; like the rich evening of a poetic life. No wonder Linnaeus, when he came to England and first beheld this shrub in bloom, fell on his knees and thanked God.—Leigh Hunt.

Birds Clever Nutcrackers.

There are certain kinds of birds that can crack nuts. The nut-hatches have a clever manner of cracking nuts. They first wedge the nuts in the crevices of the bark of a tree and then pick at them with their bills until the nuts are opened. Woodpeckers use their tails for support as they climb the trunk of a tree, but the nut-hatches usually climb with their tail pointed to the zenith.

When the nut-hatches call it sounds as if they were saying, "Yank, yank, yank," and this strange noise is heard from both the white-breasted and the red-breasted birds, says the American Forestry association of Washington.

BEAUTIFUL ISLE IS TOBAGO

Cruise's Famous Abode, in the Caribbean, Described as a Place of Many Attractions.

Tobago, the scene of Robinson Crusoe's story, and the one-time residence of John Paul Jones, is an island of supreme beauty nestled in the Caribbean, whose stormy history is without parallel in the bloodstained annals of the West Indies. History says it was fought over for centuries by French, Spanish, British, Dutch and savage Caribs and often deserted for scores of years at a time. The Detroit News recalls. The Justice of Tobago's claim to be called Crusoe's island is unquestionable. Defoe's hero was one Alexander Selkirk in real life. That he was marooned as related is an historical fact. The natives can even show one the caves in which he dwelt, and from no other isle could the castaway have peered forth across the waters of the "Gulf of Oroonoke," to which he refers, and see the faint outlines of the "Island of Trinidad," as stated in his story.

Wonderfully varied and beautiful is Tobago and the visitor is inclined to wonder why Crusoe ever deserted it. Its coast line has crescent sand beaches bordering sheltered coves; outlying verdure-draped rocky islets and wooded bays; surf-washed reefs protecting secluded lagoons. Everywhere wonderfully luxuriant vegetation covers the land. It has a delightful climate, there are no snakes, and it would be an ideal winter resort if its attractiveness were known. There is one village of 3,000 people on the island.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel; there's no sickness or pain after taking them. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating. No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown taste," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "no good" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

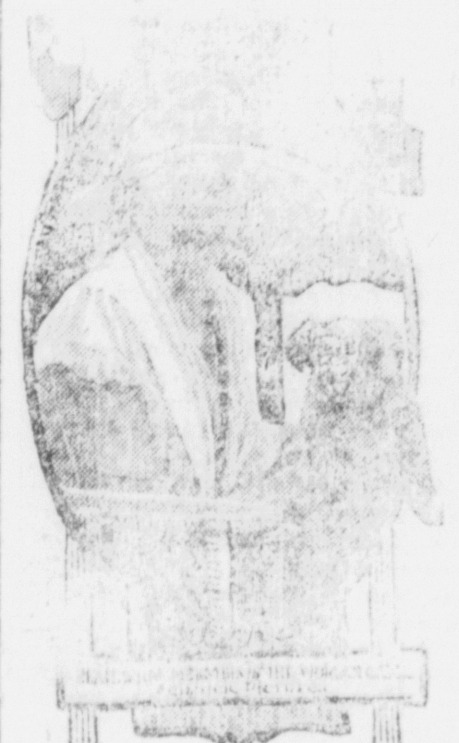

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil; you will know them by their olive color. Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 10c and 25c.

AMUSEMENTS

At the Best Today and Tomorrow

There is promise of exceptional entertainment at the Best theatre when Elaine Hammerstein in "The Woman Game" will be offered as the featured attraction. The engagement is for two days beginning today.

From a story by Leighton Osmon and Frank Dazey, G. Marion Burton, one of the ablest of present day writers for the motion picture screen, has provided a scenario said to possess unusual strength. The authors have gone into the common-place walks of life for typical incidents about which to weave some real drama, powerful in its appeal but portrayed in the most natural way imaginable—without crime, cheap sensation, or startling action.

"The Woman Game" of the title is merely the game, as old as life itself, which women are always playing in their own behalf or in behalf of those they love. The big interest in the picture lies in its showing up this game so that all those who are playing it unconsciously are able to understand it—and its complete justification.

At the Park Again Tonight

Scandal mongers make full use of an innocent and thoughtless act of Amelia Thorndike when she walked from her room into the apartment of Captain Kenneth Laird. An inspired article in "The Tattler," sets society's tongues to wagging and before she knows it, her engagement is broken and she is threatened with disgrace. This is the situation that confronts Katherine MacDonald as Amelia Thorndike in "The Beauty Market," her latest production for First National Exhibitors' Circuit and which is shown at the New Park theatre again today.

Declared by critics to be the most beautiful woman in the world, Miss MacDonald's part in this production affords her the opportunity of her screen career for a joint display of her remarkable beauty and histrionic ability.

Driving home a lesson that society sham and "four flushing" must be explained in the end by paying for everything gained, "The Beauty Market" promises to be one of the season's most inviting attractions.

BUSH'S GOOD FORM IN PRACTICE GAME

C. H. Post, Wealthy Manufacturer and Baseball Fan, Sends Newspaper Clipping

TO HIS FRIEND, H. P. DUNN

"Story Reads Good to Me", Said Post, "Hope Bush Doesn't Beat the Yankees"

Many fans and a number of Brainerd ones too thought for a time when Bush pitched but twice last season and then was seen no more in a Red Sox uniform that his pitching days were over.

But the practice game of the Red Sox with the New York Giants of National league fame April 6 marked Bush in a great come-back. A newspaper clipping of his great pitching feat was sent to Postmaster H. P. Dunn by his friend, C. H. Post, a wealthy eastern manufacturer who has always been an admirer of Joe Bullet Leslie Bush.

He wrote to Mr. Dunn: "This reads good to me and I know it will to you."

"Bullet Joe" Bush

but I hope he (Bush) doesn't beat my Yankees when he pitches against them.

Here is the story as sent to the eastern paper from Winston-Salem, N. C.:

In weather that was far more suitable for football than baseball the Boston Red Sox defeated the Giants in the twelfth game of their exhibition series, which was staged here this afternoon before a packed house. "Bullet Joe" Bush and Herb Pennock, the southpaw, held McGraw's men to four hits and the American Leaguers scored a 6 to 0 shut-out.

Harry Hooper, the veteran outfielder of the Sox, played a leading part in bringing the Giants' winning streak of six games to an end. Whenever the Boston team wins, it is nearly always Hooper who lends a helping hand. This afternoon the outfielder helped himself to a home run with two on and a pair of singles, in addition to robbing Burns of a double in the fifth inning.

There was a fierce gale blowing across the diamond, and the Giants had trouble getting the ball out of the infield. They had only one real chance to score and that was in the third inning. Right here, folks, let us say that Joe Bush still has a few good ball games left in his right arm.

Giants Fill the Bases
The inning started by George Kelly striking out. Gonzales smashed a grounder down the third-base line, which Foster was lucky to stop. Barnes lifted a drive close to the fence, which Menosky muffed after a hard run. Gonzales, however, only reached second. Burns fled to McInnis, but Bush walked Young, filling the bases.

It appeared as if Bush's good showing in the first two innings was only a flash in the pan. Fletcher, the next batter, lifted a foul, which Foster ingloriously dropped. The next ball Fletcher fouled over the grandstand. "Bullet" Joe Bush then threw the shortstop a high fast ball in a close. There was plenty of "smoke" on it, and Fletcher missed the swing by several inches. The crowd gave Bush a big hand as he came back to the bench.

It was Bush's first game of the year, and his showing was a big surprise to the members of the Boston team. "Bullet Joe" hurt his arm pitching to Fletcher in an exhibition game at Gainesville, Fla., last spring and was of little use to the Red Sox during the season. Some thought his big league pitching career was at an end.

This afternoon Joe worked the first four innings. He had plenty of speed and a fine change of pace which bothered the New York batteries. During his occupancy of the mound he yielded only two singles. So effective was his hurling that he retired the Giants in order in three of the four innings.

Ryan Replaces Barnes

Jess Barnes and Bill Ryan, the Holy Cross youngster, divided the pitching for New York. Barnes worked smoothly for four innings, but in the fifth he was lambasted for a quartet of runs. McInnis opened the rally with a single to center. After Foster had been retired Scott beat out a hit down the third base line.

Benny Barr, the young Boston pitcher, luffed for Devine. Barr hit the center field fence for two bases. McInnis crossing the plate with the first run of the game. Paddy Livingston batted for Bush and forced Scott at the plate. He per followed with a home run drive over the left field fence, Barr and Livingston scoring ahead of him. The ball hit the top of a house on the other side of the street.

Boston's other two runs were scored off Ryan in the closing chapter of the pastime. The youngster walked Hiller, who had replaced Scott at short. Al Walters followed with a drive over the short left field fence for a home run. If the ball had been hit at the Polo Grounds Burns would have caught it in his hip pocket.

Pennock replaced Bush in the fifth, and was just as effective as "Bullet Joe." The southpaw yielded only two singles, and not a player reached second on him. He struck out Sick in sixth, Ryan and Kelly in the seventh and Smith in the eighth.

WAR ON RODENTS

Good Work Done by United States Biological Survey.

Stockmen of the West Apparently Do Not Realize the Enormous Loss Caused by the Activity of the Little Pests.

The great gray wolf has slain his thousands, but the prairie dog has slain his tens of thousands. Thus might the story of Saul and David be paraphrased on the great open ranges of the West, where there is no homeward lea for the howling herds and where the sheep are not gathered at twilight into the sheepfold.

There was a time, now happily fading into the dim past, when predatory animals destroyed live stock to the value of $20,000,000 a year, but every year, down to the present time, rodents destroy on these same ranges forage that would be worth $150,000,000 a year as pasture for cattle and sheep—a destruction of that much potential live stock value. These figures were brought out by the United States biological survey recently. The purpose of the comparison, primarily, was to convince live stock men of the range country of the necessity of closer and more active co-operation with the government in the destruction of such rodents as the prairie dog, the ground squirrel, the jack rabbit and the pocket gopher.

It is estimated that each wolf on the range destroys not less than $1,000 worth of stock each year, and these 2,000 wolves, if they had not been destroyed would mean a loss of not less than $2,000,000 to the stockmen annually. Other great stock loss would have been caused by the 240 mountain lions and great numbers of other predatory animals that have been killed. All this saving is perfectly apparent to the stockmen and they have not stinted money in aiding the work. States, communities and associations of individuals have made liberal appropriations to supplement those made by the federal government.

But the losses from rodents, great as they are, have never been so strikingly apparent. The rodent is individually insignificant and comparatively few stockmen realize the value of the forage destroyed by the multiplied millions of them. The prairie dog alone occupies more than 100,000,000 acres of the best range land in the Rocky mountain region, and his range is overlapped in places by the ground squirrel, gopher and rabbit. The prairie dog destroys from 75 to 95 per cent of the grass in any territory it occupies. It has been estimated by experts that the ranges of New Mexico would support 400,000 more cattle or 1,500,000 more sheep than at present if the prairie-dog pest could be altogether removed.

One of the simplest methods used by the biological survey to destroy rodents is to mix a strychnine paste with oats or other grain and spread the mixture in the neighborhood of their holes, or in places where they are in the habit of feeding. Of course suitable precautions must be taken to see that cattle and other stock do not get any of the poisoned grain. Using this method, one man in Arizona treated in one day 320 acres. Eighty quarts of poisoned oats were used, the total cost, including labor, being $9.79. As a result of this, 1,650 dead prairie dogs were collected from this area, but the number killed undoubtedly was much larger.

It was Bush's first game of the year, and his showing was a big surprise to the members of the Boston team. "Bullet Joe" hurt his arm pitching to Fletcher in an exhibition game at Gainesville, Fla., last spring and was of little use to the Red Sox during the season. Some thought his

Georges Carpentier, European Champion Who Seeks Jack Dempsey's Title, and the Very Latest in Collars from Paris

This is Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of Europe, and France's war hero who was wounded twice and decorated thrice, as the camera caught him just before he walked down the gangplank of La Savoie on her arrival at New York. The big, blue eyed, blond Frenchman looked more like a college student than the pugilist who hopes to wrest the world's championship from Jack Dempsey. Carpentier, who has been called the Beau Brummel of the Boulevards, wore a serge suit of light blue. His coat was graced by a marvelously cut collar which ended near his waist line. His blue necktie, ornamented by a large pearl, matched his suit. There was one real sensation in Carpentier's dress. It was his collar. The collar and shirt were of the same enormous mottled design and the collar came down in long points below the lapels of the freshly rolled coat. "Some collar" was the unanimous verdict of the sporting writers who greeted him at the pier.

French Potash.

With one exception all potash mines in Alsace were owned and operated by German companies before the war. Until the Alsatian mines passed under French control the German government regulated the sale of potash from them and from the German mines in order to prevent overproduction and to keep prices at a uniform level. The total quantity to be sold during the year was fixed, as well as the amount to be supplied by each company. Prices were established for the various grades. During the year 1913 the German and Alsatian mines produced 11,000,000 tons of crude potash, six per cent of this amount, or approximately 660,000 tons, being the quota from the Alsatian mines. When the Germans left, some of the mines were found to be in a flooded state, and considerable pumping and repairs were necessary. Since the armistice the production has been increased by more than 500 per cent.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture improved by the addition of other ingredients by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.

Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite to impart color and a youthful appearance to the hair. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

"TAKES COMBINED EFFORT TO GET HAMLINE UNIVERSITY"

—Rev. E. A. Cooke

Northern Minnesota Must Unite to Show Its Advantages, Said Speaker to Bemidji Audience

ADDRESSES COMMERCE ASSN.

Speaker Clearly Presented Many Facts Concerning Hamline "U" and Possibilities

(Bemidji Daily Pioneer)

Speaking before the members of the Bemidji Civic and Commerce association, following the noon-day luncheon on Wednesday, Rev. E. A. Cooke of Brainerd very clearly outlined the necessary plan of action to secure for Northern Minnesota the Hamline university. In main his talk was as follows:

"Hamline University has determined to move from its present location where it has been crowded out by business interests and is not able to expand as desired. An offer from the City of St. Paul for the university buildings has been accepted by the board of trustees who are now looking for a new site. At the time considering the moving of the university, no intention was sounded in regard to moving outside of the limits of the twin cities, and several sites there have been looked at and considered, but sites which will allow the expansion which is desired are very hard to find in either St. Paul or Minneapolis because of the fact that the same situation is confronted everywhere in the cities as is being confronted at the present site. The opinion of the board of trustees is that they do not want to move Hamline outside of the cities, but this in a great measure is due to the fact that the majority of the board members are located there."

Hamline is Oldest

"Hamline is the oldest collegiate institution in the state, having received its charter in 1854. It has five large buildings, in addition has a large athletic field. Its endowment is approximately $1,000,000 and it will have adequate building funds of about one million when it decides to rebuild, this fund to be made up from the sale of the present buildings and site. The library building will be sold to the Carnegie fund for a city building and the money turned into the building fund. The new site will have at least six buildings. Hamline has at present 500 students, but in a new location under the expected expansion, the enrollment will without doubt be increased to nearly 1,000 students."

What Can Northern Minnesota Do

"The question of securing Hamline for Northern Minnesota, whether it be for Bemidji, Brainerd or any of the towns which are trying for it in this section, is a mighty big one. It is a question in my mind whether or not any city in that northern part of the state can secure it. No one town or city can secure it on its own initiative, the task is too large for that. Only by the heartiest of cooperation of all Northern Minnesota can the task be accomplished."

"The project must be viewed from the standpoint of a statesman as to where in each person's own mind would be the best location for this institution. Then again it must be viewed from another standpoint. How is it going to be done? First of all, we must remove the natural prejudice to moving out of St. Paul, and must also remove the interest which is apparently centered there, causing the board of directors to give careful consideration to every location in the state in order to get the best."

Does Not Cater to Twin Cities

"Hamline is not catering to students from St. Paul or Minneapolis. Only a few students from the twin cities attend Hamline, and the parents of those have moved there to allow their sons and daughters to attend. These same families would move to a city farther northward just as quickly. The twin cities are abundantly supplied with institutions of learning, so with the southern part of the state. North of an east and west line running through the twin cities, there is not a Protestant, or English speaking school of this kind in the state and this section north of this line includes three-fourths of the entire population outside of the twin cities. In this northern section the population increase has been 33 per cent, while south of the line it has only been 3 per cent in the same length of time, showing that the trend of population is northward."

Inspires Students to Attend

"The presence of a university in any community inspires students to attend, just the fact that it is located somewhere in the vicinity. If Hamline can not be secured at this time, it will not be long before some institution does realize what a field of opportunity is offered in this section of the state. Such an institution would necessarily be forced to begin on a smaller scale, with possibly only one building at the start. It would be far better to secure Hamline if possible, since it would command respect and interest from all Northern Minnesota right at the start."

Should Be Outstanding

"Carleton stands out in the southern part of the state as no other school does at present. Hamline is its equal in every way but it is not the outstanding institution in the city as is Carleton. Hamline is under the shadow of the University of Minnesota, and would have a better field in a city where it would be the big thing. An institution like Hamline or Carleton helps to boost the name of the town, and the name of the town helps to boost the institution. The mention of the one suggests the other."

"The whole of Northern Minnesota must be carefully investigated for its advantages to such a school. It would be better for Bemidji to have the school located at Brainerd than to have it remain in its present location. I honestly believe. Red Wing, where Hamline was first situated, Rochester, Redwood Falls are also endeavoring to secure Hamline. Some of these cities have many direct advantages to the school and can offer a greater financial inducement than either Brainerd or Bemidji."

"Co-operation is Necessary"

"Every citizen in Northern Minnesota must do all possible to show that it would be better for the institution and the development of the state to have Hamline located north of the Twin cities, before a satisfactory hearing can be secured with the trustees. We must all work together for either Brainerd or Bemidji to bring about this great advantage to every town in the entire northern section of the state."

The first bids received last month were considered too high and the new bids were asked for April 17.

ELKS PLAN BIG TIME

Entertainment Committee Named to Provide Good Things for the May 6th Session

An attendance of forty on a pay day night was certainly good for the Elks lodge, and the members decided on an entertainment committee to provide some good things for the big meeting night of Thursday, May 6, when a class of nine or more is to be initiated.

The building committee reported further progress. Votes of thanks were accorded the Brainerd Municipal band for its participation in the parade April 1, also to the Easter ball committee which was headed by Harry J. Carlson also to C. D. Johnson and Sam Buttress for taking part in the parade.

Rehearsals for the Elks home talent play, "Katchoo-Koo" are being held in the small hall of the Citizens State bank block and a finished performance will be given April 29 and 30 at the New Park theatre.

The lodge voted $25 as its share towards a Minnesota Elks' float in the parade at the national convention in Chicago this summer. S. F. Alderman was named a delegate to the state convention at St. Cloud and W. F. Kuntz alternate.

A large number of applications for membership were voted on.

NEW RULES IN FORCE AS TO CITIZENSHIP ADMITTANCE

The government has new rules relating to admittance to citizenship, which inaugurate quite a change. The new rules grow out of discoveries made during the war as to how alarming is the extent to which we have citizens who can not read and write English and who have little or no knowledge of American history, our government or what its ideals are. Under the new rules, every applicant for citizenship has to take a course of schooling and has to pass an examination when he finishes the course prescribed.

The county superintendent of schools of the county appoints a teacher for the applicant and the government supplies the books, both for the teacher and the applicant. The course of study includes reading, writing, American geography, American history, primary arithmetic and quite a thorough course in American civil government. Where the applicant is married, books are included also for his wife, although the law does not require that the wife pass the examination to be admitted to citizenship. Admittance of the husband carries with it admittance of the wife.

Rolled Oats Burned

The old Fitzgerald two-story warehouse used by Jacob Mueller for storing Non-Alco and the story and a half warehouse adjoining owned by the Irwin Milling Co. near the Northern Pacific tracks, were practically destroyed by fire of unknown origin at noon Thursday. Firemen removed the near-beer to a place of safety. In the milling company building 100 cases of rolled oats stored there for Griggs-Cooper & Co. of St. Paul, were burned up. Water pressure was low until J. C. Clausen got to the shop valve and closed that gate when pressure immediately increased. The Sargent place to the east was not touched.

REHEARSALS STARTED

"Katchoo-Koo", Elks Home Talent play, to be Given at New Park Theatre April 29 and 30

Principals of the cast for "Katchoo-Koo", an Oriental-American fantasy, met at the Citizens State bank hall to receive and "try-out" their respective parts and have the first reading of lines. Much fun resulted for the lines and situations of the play are decidedly amusing. Only a few changes were necessary in the original cast selected by the committee.

This home talent play to be given by Brainerd Lodge of Elks No. 615 harkens of the Orient. There will be incense, the silken bloomers and turbans of India, and oodles of fascinating young women dressed in bewitching costumes. An interesting story is told with a wealth of entertainment in all lines that is almost an embarrassment of riches. The stage settings are fine, the costumes dainty and the music catchy and pleasing.

The production centers about a notorious Eas-In-lan fakir, Katchoo-Koo, who suddenly undergoes a complete metamorphosis through being invested with a magic wearing apparel which induces characteristics hitherto unknown to him. He is changed from a powerful Hindu to a love-making and flirtatious gay young Lothario.

NO SUMMER HOME FOR PRESIDENTS

UNITED STATES HAS FAILED TO FOLLOW THE PLAN OF OTHER COUNTRIES

CAPITAL IS NOT DESIRABLE

Washington Temperature Causes Many to Desert City During Heated Season—Wilson Takes Residence in Coast Village of Massachusetts.

By JAMES P. HORNADAY.

Washington. — The announcement that President Wilson has taken a home for the summer at Woods Hole, a coast village in Massachusetts, is a reminder that the government has never taken up seriously the question of providing a dwelling place outside the national capital for its presidents, although the subject has frequently been approached. In this respect the United States is behind the other great countries of the world. Most rulers, as is well known, have the privilege of choosing from three to six or more places of residence. No one has ever suggested that this country should go to such an extravagance, but a great many persons do feel and so express themselves that the United States should provide a summer home for the president away from the seat of government.

The chief argument perhaps in favor of the government buying an out-of-town home for the chief executive is that Washington is not a desirable place of residence during the summer. With few exceptions, and President Wilson is one of these exceptions, presidents have always found it necessary to get away from the capital during the summer months. President Wilson, through force of circumstances, has been compelled to spend practically the whole of every summer during the seven years he has been in office in the White House. What he would have done had not the war tied him down here no one would venture to say. All that is to be said is that he had stuck to his job regardless of the weather and some people are of the opinion that he is now paying for this devotion to duty.

Where Others Went.

For the most part presidents have, with the approach of the hot weather season, turned their faces toward the Atlantic ocean. Grover Cleveland, it will be recalled, spent his summers at Buzzards Bay in Massachusetts, not very far from where President Wilson is planning to go this summer. The Cleverlands were introduced to the Buzzards Bay region by Joseph Jefferson, the actor, who had a summer home there and who entertained the president and Mrs. Cleveland during the better part of two summers before the president decided to purchase Gray Gables.

McKinley did not pick a permanent summer home during his term of office, though he had planned, so it has been said, to purchase a place at Cape May and doubtless would have carried out this plan had he lived. He took great delight in short excursions back to his Ohio home at Canton and broke up his summers by short visits to various Atlantic coast resorts. But he liked his Canton home best of all.

The problem of a summer home was solved for President Roosevelt when he took office. Sagamore Hill, near Oyster Bay, L. I., combined all the comforts of both a winter and a summer home. It was snug in winter and with an outlook over the sound was always a pleasant place to live in summer. So it was not strange that Colonel Roosevelt should with the coming of warm weather put the White House behind him and go to his Long Island home. He spent every summer while he was president in the Sagamore Hill home. The White House office force was always moved to the town of Oyster Bay and the business of the government falling to the lot of the president went on undisturbed.

Warmly attached to Massachusetts, President Taft as soon as he became president, saw to it that arrangements were made for a summer home for him in that state.

Little Time for Rest.

In the earlier part of his administration President Wilson made some effort to break away from Washington during the summers, but he never really succeeded. In the summer of 1916 he took a summer home over on the coast of New Jersey and was there a short time. He also leased a summer home in New Hampshire for one summer and was able to spend almost two months up there, but public business forced his return to the White House. The public will naturally wish him a restful summer at Woods Hole.

Since Cleveland's time every president has had the yacht Mayflower at his disposal and when he has been compelled to remain in Washington during the heated season has been able to find relief in short excursions down the Potomac and out into Chesapeake bay. President Wilson has made less use of the yacht than either President Taft or President Roosevelt.

The item of expense which a president must incur in providing his own summer home is no small matter. Congress has never ventured to make an appropriation for such accommodation.

Lower Population Gain Indicated

Washington, April 15—Review of population figures of the 449 cities and towns thus far announced was made public today by the census bureau. Comparative figures for 429 of these places in the last two decades show a 6.5 per cent decline in the percentage of increases from 1910 to 1920 as compared with the 28.4 per cent gain the preceding decade.

The remaining 21 places represent cities or towns which were not existing as separate communities in 1900, but have since organized and become incorporated.

Including yesterday's announcement the review showed an aggregate population of 10,058,315, an increase of 1,780,372 over 1910 or 21.9 per cent.

Falling off was due largely to the "check of immigration which resulted from the world war," said Director S. L. Rogers. Total immigration to the United States for the last 10 years showing a decrease of 3,364,000 compared with the preceding decade.

The recent influenza epidemic also probably had some effect in retarding the natural increase of population Mr. Rogers said.

Beavers Cut Trees

Ashland, Wis., April 16—An excellent display of work accomplished by beavers and collected by Game Warden Grey can be seen in the offices of the Ashland Daily Press.

It includes two trees cut down by be animals in the north country. Each tree is 12 inches in diameter.

Because of the damage done by the beavers, the state has ordered Grey to destroy the beaver colony in the Gibon swamp.

Gibes at Men of Law.

Many uncomplimentary verdicts of lawyers may be found in Europe's history and literature. Sir Thomas More's Utopia had no lawyers, every man being left to plead his own case. Napoleon was given to stigmatizing lawyers as a class that lived on the quarrels of others, and stirred up trouble as a merchant drums up trade. He once sarcastically admitted that he had never been courageous enough to adopt his plan of starving lawyers by legislation to the effect that they should not receive fees save when they won their cases.

Chicago Schools Closed

(By United Press)

Chicago, April 16—All public school in Chicago were closed today and will remain closed for a week unless a settlement is made with the striking school engineers who walked out for more pay last night.

The school board expected an early settlement. The engineers refused a flat salary of $275 to $325 increase. According to members of the school board 325 engineers were out.

Blamed for Murders

Los Angeles, April 16—The theory that Richard Huitt alleged to have married at least 25 women, is a "woman hater" and resorted to many marriages as revenge on women as a sex for suffering caused him by a few, beginning with his mother, was advanced here today by Mrs. Elizabeth Williamson of Sacramento, Cal., who said she married him last August 28, 1919, when he was using the name of Harry Lewis.

Huitt still is under guard in a hospital here receiving treatment for self-inflicted wounds.

Dubious Prospect.

"That psychic expert says there are trees and animals in the spirit world," "Mebbe there are," said Farmer Cornsack. "Only I must say that chopin' wood an' drivin' hosses are among the things of this life that I was hopin' to get away from."

Thought 3 Little Children Needed Mother's Care

"My stomach suffering was so severe that I could not have lasted much longer. I did not care so much for myself but did not want to leave my three little children who needed a mother's love and care. A cousin in California wrote me about Mayr's Wonderful Remedy and I took a course of it. I have since been entirely well." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis.
